How to use this worksheet

- Do the parts in order from top to bottom.
- Each part has a time so you know how long to spend.
- Read every instruction before you write. You can do this on your own.

Part 1 – What you will learn (about 3 minutes)

What you will learn: Using technology is part of life, but we need rules, kindness, and balance (not only screens all day). In this worksheet you will learn to ask permission, take fair turns, take breaks, and stay safe with trusted adults and privacy.

Do this:

1. Name one rule your family or class has about devices (e.g. "Ask before you touch").

2. Circle: Sharing devices fairly is important / not important.

Part 2 – Permission and limits (about 5 minutes)

Before you use someone else's tablet, phone, or game, ask permission. Follow time limits your family or teacher sets. Limits help everyone get a turn and stay healthy.

Real-life scenario: Your cousin leaves a tablet on the couch. You want to play a game on it. Your cousin is in another room.

Discuss with a partner or think: What should you do first before you touch the tablet?

Do this:

1. Circle the safe choices: Grab it and start playing Ask your cousin or a grown-up if you may use it Hide it so no one else plays
 2. Write one sentence you could say to ask permission (e.g. "May I use your tablet for ten minutes?").

Part 3 – Fair turns and kindness (about 5 minutes)

Sometimes there is one computer or one tablet for many students. Fair turns mean waiting, using a timer, or taking turns without grabbing. Use kind words. Do not laugh at mistakes on someone's screen.

Real-life scenario: Two students both want the same school computer. There is only one at the table.

Critical thinking: How might the waiting student feel if the other student grabs the mouse? What is one better choice they could make?

Do this:

1. Circle kind actions: Grab the mouse Say "Two more minutes, then it's my turn?" Yell "Hurry up!" Use a timer everyone agrees on
 2. Write or draw one fair way to decide who goes first (e.g. shorter turn first, rock-paper-scissors, ask the teacher).

Part 4 – Balance and breaks (about 5 minutes)

Balance means you do more than screens: play outside, read, draw, sleep, and eat meals. Some families say no screens at dinner. Breaks help tired eyes and a wiggly body: stretch, drink water, look far away.

Real-life scenario: After a long game, your eyes feel tired and you feel wiggly.

Discuss with a partner or think: What is one break you could take that still follows your class or family rules?

Do this:

1. List 2 activities you enjoy that do not need a screen (e.g. soccer, drawing, building blocks).

2. Circle healthy break actions: Keep playing for one more hour without blinking Stand up and stretch Drink water Look at something far away if your teacher allows

Part 5 – Trusted adults and privacy (about 5 minutes)

If something online feels scary, weird, or too good to be true, tell a trusted adult (parent, teacher, aide). Privacy means you do not share your full name, home address, or photos with strangers on games or websites.

Real-life scenario: A game says, "Type your home address to win a free prize!"

Critical thinking: Why might giving your address to a game be unsafe?

Do this:

1. Circle the safer choice: Type your address Tell a trusted adult and do not type it Ask a stranger online for help
2. Name one trusted adult you could tell if a message or game feels wrong.

3. Circle information you should not share with strangers online: Your favorite color Your full name and address Your favorite animal

Part 6 – Check what you learned (about 2 minutes)

Checklist. Put a ✓ in the box when it is true for you.

- ☐ I know to ask permission before using someone else's device.
- ☐ I know how to take fair turns and use kind words when sharing technology.
- ☐ I know to take breaks and do activities without a screen sometimes.
- ☐ I know to tell a trusted adult when something online feels wrong.
- ☐ I know not to share private information (like my full name or address) with strangers online.

When all boxes are checked, you have reviewed the main ideas from this worksheet.
